6 Pillars for the Man Who Built It His Way — and Is Ready to Try God's.

The framework men are using to stop performing,
find their God-given purpose, and finally close the gap.

A PERSONAL NOTE

I spent most of my adult life building things. A business. A reputation. A house on the hills of Temecula with land and palm trees that I had envisioned years before I found it. From the outside, everything looked like it was working.

On the inside, I was falling apart. I called it stress. I called it burnout. I played video games for hours and overate and worked obsessively and told myself I was fine. I wasn't. I ended up in a hospital room at 2am convinced I was having a heart attack. It was anxiety. That was the night I stopped pretending.

What I learned in the years that followed became the BILD Six Pillar framework. These are not principles I invented — they are things I lived. The hospital room, the $500,000 check I wrote to myself before I understood why I wanted the money, the seven-year-old boy by a pool in Las Vegas who was running my adult relationships for decades without me knowing it. Every pillar in this guide came from something real.

This guide is for the man who has built something — maybe everything he was supposed to build — and still feels like something fundamental is missing. The man who is tired of performing. The man who, somewhere quiet, wonders if there is a different way to do this.

01

PILLAR 01

Powerlessness

Name what is actually controlling you.

"My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

2 Corinthians 12:9

"I give unto men weakness that they may be humble; and my grace is sufficient for all men that humble themselves before me."

Ether 12:27 — Book of Mormon

Most men spend their entire lives managing a feeling they have never named. They call it stress. They call it being busy. They call it just how it is when you are building something real.

The honest name for it is powerlessness. And the moment something feels out of control, the brain goes looking for anything it can influence — fast, below awareness. Video games. Overwork. Withdrawal. Harsh words. Food. Whatever your version is, it gives temporary relief and creates real distance from the people who matter most.

This is the False Power Move Cycle. Most men run it for decades without ever seeing it clearly. The naming is not defeat. The naming is the beginning of everything.

God does not ask you to be strong in the way the world defines strength. He asks you to be honest enough to admit where you are weak — and humble enough to let His strength work in that place.

REFLECTION QUESTION

What do you reach for when you feel out of control? Name it specifically.

THE SHIFT

A man who can name his pattern is no longer completely at its mercy. That is the first step — not fixing it, just seeing it.

02

PILLAR 02

Accountability

Build the foundation no one sees.

"He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

Luke 16:10

"No power or influence can or ought to be maintained... only by persuasion, by long-suffering, by gentleness and meekness, and by love unfeigned."

D&C; 121:41

There are two kinds of accountability. The kind people see — you show up, you deliver, you keep your word publicly. Most high-achieving men are exceptional at this. It is part of how they built what they built.

Then there is private accountability. What you put in your mind before the day gets loud. How you actually pray — honestly, not as performance. Whether the man you are at 11pm when no one is watching matches the man you present at 9am.

The gap between those two men is costing you something you can feel but haven't been able to name. Your wife feels it. Your kids sense it. You feel it at 2am.

The authority that makes people actually follow — not just comply — comes from congruence. When who you are in private and who you are in public are the same man, something changes in the way you lead.

REFLECTION QUESTION

What does your first 30 minutes of the day actually look like — not what you want it to look like?

THE SHIFT

One small private discipline, practiced daily for 90 days, will change you more than any public commitment you have ever made.

03

PILLAR 03

Create With Him

Stop building alone. Start building with God.

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding."

Proverbs 3:5

"Feast upon the words of Christ; for behold, the words of Christ will tell you all things what ye should do."

2 Nephi 32:3 — Book of Mormon

Most driven men get the sequence completely backwards. We decide what we want. We build toward it. We work hard. And then we ask God to bless what we have already done. That is not co-creation. That is building alone and asking for an endorsement after the fact.

The sequence that actually works is different: build the foundation first. Bring your plans to God honestly — not as a transaction, but as a real conversation. Be still enough to notice what feels right and what feels off. Watch for quiet doors. The best opportunities in my life opened subtly, not loudly.

I was at my lowest in 2010. Considering leaving everything. I felt a quiet prompting to look up pool builder websites near me. I filled out a form. Within a year my business went from $500,000 to $1.5 million. I did not force that door. I was still enough to notice it.

The doors you keep forcing may be closed on purpose. The quiet door you keep walking past may be the one He has been holding open for you.

REFLECTION QUESTION

Where in your life are you currently forcing a door? What would it look like to stop forcing it?

THE SHIFT

God is not withholding good things from you. He is waiting for you to stop building without Him.

04

PILLAR 04

Purpose

Excavate what is already there.

"For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end."

Jeremiah 29:11

"By small and simple things are great things brought to pass."

Alma 37:6 — Book of Mormon

Most men I work with have confused achievement with purpose for most of their adult lives. Achievement answers: what have I built? Purpose answers: why does it matter — and to whom?

A man can accumulate decades of achievement with almost no clarity on purpose. His revenue goes up. His reputation is solid. And at 3am the question surfaces anyway: is this what I am actually for?

Purpose does not need to be invented. In almost every man it is already there — covered by urgency, obligation, and the accumulated weight of a life built trying to prove he was enough. The coaching task is not construction. It is excavation.

One question does more excavating than almost anything else: What do you want your children to say at your funeral — not about what you built, but about who you were? Write the answer that makes you feel something. That answer is a compass.

REFLECTION QUESTION

If income were removed as a measure of success, what else would tell you this year mattered?

THE SHIFT

The man who knows what he is for leads differently, loves differently, and shows up differently in every room he walks into.

05

PILLAR 05

Forgiveness

Set down the weight you forgot you were carrying.

"For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you."

Matthew 6:14

"Yea, and as often as my people repent will I forgive them their trespasses against me."

Mosiah 26:30 — Book of Mormon

By the time most men get here, they believe they have already dealt with forgiveness. They have moved on. They are not angry. They are fine.

But there is heat when a certain name comes up. There is distance they maintain with certain people. There is a version of shame they carry about specific chapters of their own life that surfaces at unexpected moments.

Forgiveness has three dimensions most men only understand one of: forgiving others, forgiving yourself, and receiving God's forgiveness. The unforgiven person has ongoing access to your emotional energy every single day — whether they know it or not. Forgiveness ends that lease. It is not about them. It is about stopping the rent they collect from you.

I did deep work on forgiveness that changed everything. There was weight I had been carrying since I was seven years old that I didn't even know was there. When I finally set it down, a ceiling I hadn't known was above me lifted.

REFLECTION QUESTION

Is there someone whose name still brings heat or heaviness when it comes to mind — even someone you believe you have already forgiven?

THE SHIFT

Every other pillar can only reach as high as your forgiveness ceiling allows. Set down the stone.

06

PILLAR 06

Imagination

See what you are building toward.

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Hebrews 11:1

"If ye will have faith in me ye shall have power to do whatsoever thing is expedient in me."

Moroni 7:33 — Book of Mormon

When I was 35 I wrote down exactly what I wanted my life to look like by the time I turned 40. A home with land. Palm trees. Space around me in the hills of Temecula. I wrote it down, and then I forgot about it.

A few months after I turned 40, I was at a customer's house discussing a pool design. The man had land. It was beautiful. Something hit me: I want that. Now. I told my wife that evening. Within three weeks we found our current home. The vision I had set five years earlier had been quietly working the whole time.

Imagination is not wishful thinking. It is a faculty — like a muscle — that atrophies under anxiety and pressure. Faith and imagination are the same act viewed from different angles. A man without imagination cannot fully exercise faith, because he has no picture of what he is believing toward.

The practice is simple: every morning, before the day gets loud, spend five minutes seeing something specific. Your marriage at its best. Your kids knowing who their father is. Your work aligned with your purpose. The more specific the scene, the more powerfully your mind and spirit orient toward it.

REFLECTION QUESTION

When did you stop letting yourself imagine something better? What was happening when imagination got quiet?

THE SHIFT

The ceiling is gone. The five pillars before this one removed it. Now — what do you see?

WHAT COMES NEXT

You have read six pillars.

Now find out where you are in the arc.

Reading about these pillars and doing the work of these pillars are two different things. The man who reads this guide and sets it down is the same man he was before. The man who takes the next step — who gets honest, who lets someone see where he actually is — starts to become someone different.

The BILD Assessment is the next step. Ten honest questions. Five minutes. Two possible results — both of which give you a clear picture of where you are in the arc and exactly what comes next. Jeff reads every result personally and sends a note based on your answers.

Ten questions. Your honest answers. A personal note from Jeff.

If something in these six pillars landed somewhere real — if you felt the weight of Pillar 5, or recognized yourself in the False Power Move Cycle, or found yourself writing your funeral answer and feeling something — that movement is worth paying attention to.
